

Staying Afloat

By Jennifer Lovejoy

Artist Statement: Jennifer Lovejoy is an architect and sculptor. Living in an off-grid house, in the mountains of Craig County, VA, which tunes her to the delicate balance each moment brings in nature's rich palette. The subtle changes in sound, light, and air enliven her and guide her life-journey.

On a large scale she shapes indoor/outdoor spaces, offering connection with those temporal shifts nature reveals. On a small scale, stone and clay are shaped, expressing a translation of her personal filter.

The creative process begins with an inquiry. The materials reveal a discovery. The result, a personal journey, which invites an opening for other's story.
